DETAILED ACTION

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's request for reconsideration of the finality of the rejection of the last Office action is persuasive and, therefore, the finality of that action is withdrawn.
2. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-3 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Spierings et al (6,045,715) in view of Niwayama (JP-09027469A).

Spierings et al disclose a process of chemically etching a glass substrate, which is used for liquid crystal display (LCP) device, which reads on claimed glass substrate and the term "used for" is considered to be an intended use of the glass substrate (abstract).

Spierings et al teach that the glass substrate is flattened (less rough surface) by removing pits or cracks under different circumstances such as stronger etchant and weaker etchant can be used with two different etching rates (col.3, lines 10-col.4, lines 30).

Spierings et al do not teach that the chemical treatment is performed by using two sequential steps namely first and second etching with first and second solution in first and second etching process machines, respectively.

However, Niwayama teach an etching process including the step of utilizing two different etching baths with two different etchant for having an etched surface with reduced foreign material on the substrate surface (see the abstract).

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skilled in the art at the time of claimed invention to modify Spierings et al's process by splitting the single step into the two sequential steps for efficiently removing contaminants or to achieve an improved etched substrate with reduced foreign materials on the substrate surface as taught by Niwayama.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The references listed in PTO-892 illustrate two separate tanks or chamber are used for improved etching process.
